We'll give you actual demonstrations, down a little further in this presentation.

HISTORY OF SOFT CHALK

Founded in 2002 by Sue Polyson Evans, Robert Godwin-Jones and Peter Hunek, Soft chalk is a privately held company located in Richmond, Virginia, USA.

Evans and Jones have a history of innovation in educational technology.

In 1990, they worked on a project that resulted in the creation of Web course in a Box, later sold to E-education leader of Blackboard Inc.

WAS THERE A NEED FOR SOFTCHALK ?

Evans and Jones recognized educators desired to create sophisticated, interactive content - but had time management problems when it came down to learning complicated authoring tools.

Softchalk is simple to use, yet powerful enough for educators to use to create interactive content.

And amazingly this lesson content is portable for use in virtually any learning management system on any web server.

ADOPTION

SoftChalk is the leading provider of content authoring software for educators in K-12, colleges, universities and even medical programs.

SoftChalk educators can create professional, engaging, learning content quickly and easily, which enhances their teaching and improves the learning experience for students.

Many testimonials from educators has helped in moving forward with the adoption of this great innovation. Personal testimonies include praise such as “SoftChalk has definitely revolutionized the way that faculty teach.” Advertisement can definitely serve as a positive push toward adoption of the SoftChalk innovation.

RELATIVE ADVANTAGE AND OBSERVATION

Relative advantage is the degree to which an innovation is perceived as better than the idea it supersedes. The SoftChalk innovation grew from the need that educators needed a new more invigorating way of enhancing innovative classrooms curriculum and preserving student interest. The SoftChalk innovation was definitely an advantage for educators in assisting them in creating interactive activities and lessons to enhance learning experiences.

Through observation, educators quickly saw the advantages of the Soft Chalk innovation in helping them to create lessons compatible with all learning managing software, such as blackboard, angel and other similar web based curriculum software.
